What is an Expert? 13

Over more than the past two decades, NLPA has been contacted in hundreds of cases to assist defense counsel. As many of you know, National Legal Professional Associates (NLPA) has been on the cutting edge of criminal pretrial, sentencing, appellate and post-conviction research. Many time it is necessary to call on an expert, such as trial consultants, private investigator, translator, doctor or polygraph expert. As a result, we have compiled a number of contacts in a variety of specialized fields

This information has been compiled by our office. It is provided to you as a courtesy and solely for general informational purposes.

Should you desire to contact and retain anyone listed herein, we would strongly suggest as you would with anyone that you hire to provide a service to you that you check them out through the Better Business Bureau or other agency that could provide you information concerning customer service satisfaction or appropriate licensing.

The Better Business Bureau recommends that you be your own best protector. As many consumers know, there is no shortage of scams out there today. The best way to avoid being taken advantage of is to become a smart consumer.

- If it is too good to be true - say NO!
- Do not do business with strangers who approach you at home without doing a thorough check through BBB.
- Get a written contract.
- Read before you sign.

Attorneys know that investigators and experts can make a difference between success or failure of a case. Before you hire an expert or investigator, you should speak with your attorney about the appropriateness of this. Your attorney may be able to recommend an expert or investigator he or she has worked with previously.

"Our government is the potent, the omnipresent teacher. For good or for ill, it teaches whole people by its example. Crime is contagious. If the Government becomes a lawbreaker, it breeds contempt for law; it invites every man to become a law unto himself; it invites anarchy. To declare that in the administration of the criminal law the end justifies the means- to declare that the Government may commit crimes in order to secure the conviction of a private criminal - would bring terrible retribution. Against that pernicious doctrine this Court should resolutely set its face." Justice Louis Brandis in Olmstead v. U.S., 277 US at 485 (1928)

What is an Expert?

An “expert” is a person with a high degree of skill and knowledge of a certain subject. It is someone who demonstrates great skill, dexterity, or knowledge as the result of training or experience.

An attorney is a person who acts for another in legal matters. Although he or she may be an “expert” and knowledgeable in law, he or she may not necessarily be an expert in specific subject matter such as drug analysis, DNA, or other forensic matters.

Why utilize an expert?

Your attorney may be an “expert” in law. However, your attorney is not a trained criminalist, psychologist or investigator. If your case requires these types of services, then it would be appropriate to consider speaking to your attorney about hiring an expert as part of the defense team.

About NLPA

NLPA is a technical consulting firm, owned and staffed by attorneys, and dedicated to the professional mission of providing counsel, research, and related work product to members of the Bar. Our ownership structure includes attorneys licensed to practice before many local, state, and federal courts; however, NLPA is not a law firm and provides no “front line” legal services. On the other hand, we are much more than your typical paralegal service as our work is prepared by attorneys. Our sole purpose is to provide research and consulting assistance by lawyers, for lawyers . . . and their clients. With cutting-edge computer research capabilities, an experienced and top quality staff, and more than sixteen years’ experience, NLPA is well-positioned to provide the types of assistance members of the Bar need. You are important to us and we hope we can commence and maintain a long-term relationship with you. Please know that we are here to assist in all your needs.

If you would like to know more about the services we offer, please contact us at:
